We may use these log files for purposes such as assisting in monitoring and troubleshooting errors and incidents, analyzing traffic, or optimizing the user experience.

Cookies. We may collect information using cookies, pixels, web beacons, and similar data collection and tracking technologies (collectively, “Tracking Technologies”). Cookies are small packets of data that a website stores on your computer’s or mobile device’s hard drive (or other storage medium) so that your device or computer will “remember” information about your use. We use both 1st and 3rd-party session cookies and persistent cookies. Some cookies are essential to the effective operation of our Websites, and others have different purposes that determine the type of information collected.

We use information collected through cookies and similar Tracking Technologies for business purposes including the following:

- To recognize you when you return to one of our Websites. This enables us to record your use of our Websites, potentially to automatically personalize our Websites’ content for you and remember your preferences. It also allows you to participate in interactive features on our Websites, when you choose to do so. For example, when you accept a disclaimer in order to view certain content, we apply a cookie to your browser so that you do not have to accept the disclaimer more than once during a browsing session;
- As part of our efforts to keep the Websites secure;
- To administer and maintain the Websites by conducting testing and solving errors;
- To capture your and other users’ use of the Websites in order to create aggregated research or statistics from time to time;
